High schools & Independent schools

King's-Edgehill School

Built in 1788, King's-Edgehill in Windsor is Canada's first independent school. At KES, students enjoy the unparalleled beauty of historic buildings in a 65-acre pastoral setting. Offering the four strands of education (the academic, athletic, aesthetic and leadership through service) KES prepares students for university entrance, propelled by the IB Programme and enveloped by nurturing teachers. Graduates attend the world's prestigious universities and win more than $1 million a year in scholarships.

Landmark East

Established in 1979, Landmark East is Canada's independent boarding and day school for students with learning differences, which include dyslexia, ADHD and non-verbal learning disabilities. Canadian and international students are given the opportunity to learn academic and social skills that enable them to become confident and independent learners. The school's small class sizes and specialized teaching programs allow students to receive intensive remedial intervention within an academic curriculum.

Nova Scotia International Student Program and Nova Scotia Secondary Schools

The Nova Scotia International Student Program (NSISP) has been offering an unparalleled public education and immersion experience to international students since 1997. Students can choose to study for a semester, full-year, or ESL Summer Camp. All students live with homestay families and are encouraged to participate in extra-curricular activities in their schools and communities. NSISP students can choose from a wide variety of subjects within the Nova Scotia curriculum and are fully integrated into the schools they attend.
